DUBLIN PORT AND DOCKS BOARD.

RESIGNATION OF SIR JOHN GRIFFITH AND ENGINEER.

GRIFFITH AND ENGINEER.

The weekly meeting of the Dublin Port and Docks Board was held yesterday, Mr. William Crowe, Chairman, presiding. Other members present were:

Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Alderman Moran (Viec-Chairman), Sir James Murphy, Bart. D.L.; Thomas M. O'Belrne, T.C.; James Yaughan, T.C.; Richard K. Gambie, J.P.; Frederick, M. Holl. Byrne, J.P.; Samuel S. McCornjok, J.P.; Walter Baird, John Hollwey, William Hewai, and Wm. J. Dollar, J.P.

CHIEF ENGINEER RESIGNS.

CHIEF ENGINEER RESIGNS.

Mr. J. W. Griffith, Engineer-in-Chief, wrote resigning his position, as he found himself unable to concur with the policy formulated by the Special Expenditure Committee, and so far confirmed by the Board. He referred especially to the recent minutes made and rushed through the Board as to the responsibility for the upkeep of the Board's property; the reductions made in wages and allowances to men employed in the maintenance of the dredging plant and works; the curtailment of the dredging itself by laying up the Sandpipor, and the interference with the works management of the Engineer's Department. As he considered that the changes made must prove injurious to the mainchanges made must prove injurious to the maintenance and future welfare of the port he felt the could not see his way to be responsible any longer for the efficient maintenance of the Board's works and plant, and, therefore, he asked the Board to make arrangements as soon as possible to allow him to retire.

The Chairman thought that as the matter entirely dealt with the action of the Special Expenditure Committee.

The Lord Mayor moved that Mr. Griffith be asked to wishdraw his resignation.

Mr. O'Beirne seconded the motion, and hoped that the little dignity which the Board had would not be taken from it by referring the matter to that shocking committee, the Special Expenditure Committee.

The Lord Mayor mixtee the letter should be referred to that committee. The people who killed the patient should not hold the post-mortem.

Mr. Hewat suggested that the matter be referred to a committee of the whole house.

SITUATION EASIER.

Inquiries around the port yesterday showed that any changes in the general situation that had occurred tended towards a relaxing of the holding up of cargoes and a more hopeful outlook. Two or three steam colliers were being discharged of coal at the eastern end of the port at the tenpence per ton rate, and arrivals included four steamers with cargoes from cross-cluded four steamers with cargoes from cross-cluded four steamers with cargoes from cross-channel ports. The middlemen or sitvedores who undertake the engagement of men have apparently split the difference between old and new terms of tomage rates. Yesterday cvaning it was stated on the quays that the entire body of coal porters were considering the advisability of taking a hall where a general meeting of the men might be held, and at which fixed rates for summer and winter work, with questions of overtime, and the whole general situation might be arranged on a definite plan, so that the constant demands which are arising might be avoided, and finality arrived at between employers and employed in the coal trade of the Liffey.

House with a statement that, after study of all the available material, including Mr. Churchill's apologia last November, the had come to the conclusion that in the matter of the Dardanelles strategy Mr. Churchill was right and Lord Kitchener was wrong, and that, if a joint naval and military expedition had been decided upon at the outset, victury would have been ours. In order that the late First Lord's reputation might be rehabilitated and his ability once more made available for the conduct of the war, he therefore urged that the Dardanelles Commission should be held in public. Mr. Asquith did not smile on the suggestion, and declared that the naval, military, and diplomatic authorities were all opposed to it.

The scandal of Mesopotamia was the basis of Mr. Iloyd George's first speech as Minister for War. He laid the trouble at the door of what he described as the peculiar relations which exist between the Government of India and the War Office in military matters. India has its own military organisation and its own Commander-in-Chief, and, while the Chief of the Imperial General Staff was responsible for the conduct of the campaign, the Indian authorities had the responsibility for supply and transport on their shoulders. This confusion of authority, in spite of the fact that the War Office had met every requisition of the Indian Government promotly, was at the bottom of the whole miserable business, and from henceforth the supreme control of operations, supply, and transport would lie with the Chief of Staff at home. Already there was a surplus of medical stores in Mesopotamia, and river craft were being hurried forward and a light railway built to cope with the problems of transport.

The speech savoured of an attack on the Indian military authorities, and certainly the House regarded it as such. But Mr. Austen Chamberlain asked the House the Indian Government had had troops engaged in Mesopotamia, Egypt, China, and France, and the debate ended by seven o'clock. No further business was taken, and the Hou is a substantial concession, says The Time, of a substantial concession, says The Time Instead of the million promised for supplementary pensions under the Act, the Governmentare now prepared to find six millions, and also undertake half the cost of administration. We congratulate the Lord Mayors and other civic dignitaries who have moved in the matter and approximately appears to the cost of the co on a very substantial success, for though Mr. McKenna implies that the Government intended something of the kind all along, we take leave to doubt whether the intention would ever have blessomed into action if the warm wind of municipal agitation had not blown vigorously

THE MESOPOTAMIAN INQUIRY. We are bound, says The Times, to warn the Government plainly that the public are in no mood to be satisfied with anything but the most somplete and prompt investigation, or with vague pledges of future action as a result of it. The Dardanelles adventure is over, and we, oursilves, have always regretted that it should be associated now with the far more urgent question of the conditions in Mesopotamia. It is of the greatest interest, no doubt, especially to its authors, and we agree with Mr. Churchill that there is the strongest case for telling the whole truth as soon as ever the facts are available. But this business on the Tigris is for the moment paramount. Our troops are still in the field, and there is far too much reason to believe that they are still suffering from to believe that they are still suffering from unnecessary and quite unpardonable misnagement. It is something gained that their e shall at least be heard.

has it been possible to get in touch with the troops which formed the left of our recent great advance. These troops had to deal with that portion of the German front which covered, and included, the big wood of Basentin-le-Petit, and I have to-day heard the Commanding Officer of I have to-day heard the Commanding Officer of the unit to which they belonged declare that, so admirable were they, no regular troops, no troops in the world, could have done better. With alternate waits and rushes, it took three heurs to get through the wood. It was full of Germans, dead and living, and at the uppeg end machine guns were posted which searched the open spaces between the wrecks of trees as org men came on. But—it is the same story as we have heard again and again in this battle—nothing stopped them. By soon after seven o'clock they had cleared the top of the wood and had taken 300 prisoners. The wood itself was, and still is, full of dead, and the Ger

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THE PROPRIETORS OF THE TIMES.)

THE GOVERNMENT AND

The Chancellor of the Exchequer met the deputation of municipal authorities yesterday with an offer which may not satisfy them, but is a substantial concession, says The Times. Instead of the million promised for supplementary pensions under the Act, the Government are now prepared to find six millions, and also to undertake half the cost of administration. We congratuals to the Lord Mayors and other eivie dignitaries who have moved in the mutter on a very substantial success, for, though Mr. McKenna implies that the Government intended something of the kind all along, we take leave

THE MESOPOTAMIAN INQUIRY.

We are bound, says The Times, to warn the Government plainly that the public are in no mood to be satisfied with anything but the most to believe that they are still suffering from nnecessary and quite unpardonable mis-management. It is something gained that their case shall at least be heard.

THE STORY OF BAZENTIN.

Not until to-day, says the Special Correspondent of The Times at British Headquarter Not until to-day, says the Special Correspondent of The Times at British Headquarters, has it been possible to get in touch with the troops which formed the left of our recent great advance. These troops had to deal with that portion of the German front which covered, and included, the big wood of Bazentin-le-Petit, and I have to-day heard the Commanding Officer of the unit to which they belonged declare that, so admirable were they, no regular troops, no troops in the world, could, have done better. With alternate waits and rushes, it took three hours to get through the wood. It was full of Germans, dead and living, and at the upper end machine guns were posted which searched the epen spaces between the wrecks of trees as our men came on. But—it is the same story as we have heard again and again in this battle—nothing stopped them. By soon after seven c'clock they had cleared the top of the wood and had taken 300 prisoners. The wood itself was, and still is, full of dead, and the Germans was, and still is, full of dead, and the Germans who were taken there say that they believe that of all the troops which were in the wood not thirty men succeeded in escaping alive.

ULSTER NATIONALISTS' DEMANDS.

LETTER FROM ROMAN CATHOLIC BISHOP OF DERRY.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

A great meeting of Nationalists from the Counties of Derry, Tyrone, and Fermanagh, and Derry City, was held this afternoon in St. Columb's Hall, Derry, for the purpose of protesting against the Lloyd George proposals for the exclusion of six Ulster counties from Home Rule. Alderman Charles O'Neill, D.L., Derry, presided over an audience numbering more than 2,000 people.

The Chairman said that their chief object was to show their detestation of exclusion, rather than have which they would prefer Home Rule to be put back for 50 years. (Cheers.) "Let us have a good Home Rule Bill," he concluded, "or none at all." (Loud theers.)

Bill," he concluded, "or none at all." (Loud cheers.)

Mr. F. J. O'Connor, Omagh, then read the following letter written to Mr. Charles O'Doherty, Hon. Secretary of the meeting, by the Most Rev. Dr. M'Hugh, Roman Catholic Bishop of Derry, a voice shouting, "There is none of the Judas about him." (Loud cheers.):—

Bishop's House, Derry, July 19, 1916.

Dask Ma. O'Donzarr,—I beg to acknowled with thanks receipt of invitation from the committee to the great meeting to be held it N. Columb's Hall to morrow for the purch tharted and detestation with which the percard the Lloyd George proposals for cutting off six Northern counties from the rest of Ireland. Strongly as I sympathies with any legitimate action the people immediately concerned and the nation may deem proper to take in order to tions to reserves. The directors had not seen any adverse criticism of this increase, because the company had earned the same, could space the company had earned the same, could space the same and they considered it would be especially welcome to the shareholders which war-time calls were so heavy. Moreover, as far as could be seen, current prospects might be regarded as favourable. Touching upon the present record results, the Chairman mentioned that the aforesaid increased turnover had caused all their available machinery to be employed to the fullest extent possible. The new mills at Matlock and Belper, and the additious and extensions elsewhere, had vary materially helped to achieve this result. Further, in the late autumn of 1914, the directors decided to purchase heavy quantities of raw material and stores to carry them very well abead, because at that time such purchases could be made upon most favourable terms. Moreover, the directors felt that by obtaining actual delivery of many commedities they were placed in a much more secure position. This policy had favourably affected the past year's trading, and, besides, when the manufacturing capacity of a large undertaking was taxed to the fullest extent, their standing charges were proportionately reduced. Moreover, they started the past year with stocks-in-trade standing at low values, and their subsequent realisation had been favourably in value. Further, before the war, their business was subjected to considerable competition from enemy producers. Such competition had practically been eliminated, and this company had secured a substantial portion of the business was subjected to considerable competition from enemy producers. Such competition had practically been eliminated, and this company had secured a substantial portion of the business. In addition, the greatly increased prosperity of American manufactories, consequent upon the unprecedented demand which began with 1914, was another contributor to these record.
